

WRITING IN THE DARK

Treat yourself to an all day workshop designed to help you generate new material, gather ideas for future projects and rejuvenate your writing. The retreat includes a stimulating day of discussion, writing and camaraderie, all in the beautiful setting of Four Winds Foundation. Breakfast and lunch are provided. Bring a notebook, information on literary opportunities and one page of prose or poetry by a writer you admire to share.

The day will culminate with a literary reading of the work created during the retreat.

Sean Hill is the author of Blood Ties & Brown Liquor (UGA Press, 2008). His awards include fellowships from Cave Canem, The MacDowell Colony, the University of Wisconsin, and a Stegner Fellowship from Stanford University. His second collection of poetry is forthcoming from Milkweed Editions in 2014. He lives in Bemidji, Minnesota, but has moved to Fairbanks, Alaska, to join the creative writing faculty at UA-Fairbanks for the 2012-2013 academic year.
